

CHAMBER OF PETROLEUM CONSUMERS - (COPEC)

6th January, 2026.

PRESS STATEMENT

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

COPEC Welcomes Significant Fuel Price Reductions and Urges Fair Pricing Across the Downstream Sector.

The Chamber of Petroleum Consumers Ghana (COPEC) has observed the recent downward adjustments in pump prices by some Oil Marketing Companies (OMCs) within the current pricing window. COPEC notes that these adjustments align with recent trends in international refined product prices, relative exchange rate stability, and intensified competition within Ghana's deregulated downstream petroleum sector.

An analysis of current pump prices indicates that petrol (Super) is selling at GH¢10.56 per litre at Star Oil, GH¢10.99 at GOIL, and GH¢11.68 at TotalEnergies, representing a 4.1% price difference between Star Oil and GOIL, and a 10.6% difference between Star Oil and TotalEnergies.

Diesel prices currently range from GH¢11.56 at Star Oil, GH¢11.96 at GOIL, to GH¢12.38 at TotalEnergies, while premium petrol (RON 95) spans from GH¢12.96 at Star Oil to approximately GH¢13.97– GH¢13.98 at GOIL and TotalEnergies.

A year -on -year comparison from the table below shows that consumers are enjoying substantial savings under the current pricing window, with reductions ranging from a minimum of GH¢3/L and maximum of GH¢4/L on Petrol and Diesel respectively compared to January 2025.

COMPARISON OF FUEL PRICES
S/N	OMCs	1st Window Jan 26		1st Window Jan 25		Petrol Variance (Ghc)	Diesel Variance (Ghc)
		Petrol (Ghc)	Diesel (Ghc)	Petrol (Ghc)	Diesel (Ghc)
1	Goil		10.99	11.96	14.99	15.6	4	3.64
2	Total		11.68	12.38	15.5	15.99	3.82	3.61
3	Shell		11.68	12.38	15.3	15.66	3.62	3.28
4	Star		10.56	11.56	14.37	14.99	3.81	3.43
5	Petrosol		11.65	12.35	14.95	15.65	3.3	3.3

In this regard, COPEC calls on OMCs that have not yet reviewed prices within the current window to do so promptly, ensuring pump prices reflect prevailing market conditions and serve the broader interest of consumers.

COPEC commends the Oil Marketing Companies that have proactively reduced prices at the pumps to reflect the dynamics on the international market. We further stress that fair and responsive fuel pricing is essential to alleviating financial pressures on households, transport operators, and businesses.

Additionally, COPEC urges commercial transport operators, including online ride -hailing services such as Bolt, Uber and Yango to begin reviewing and adjusting their fares to reflect the current reductions in Ex-Pump prices. Consumers must not be denied the benefit of price reductions when international and local market conditions become favourable.

COPEC remains committed to monitoring fuel price movements across the various stations nationwide and will continue engaging stakeholders to promote responsiveness, transparency, fairness, and accountability in the downstream petroleum sector.

Yours faithfully,

Duncan Amoah.
Executive Secretary.
