

JOINT STATEMENT
BETWEEN
TRADES UNION CONGRESS (TUC)-GHANA
&
PUBLIC UTILITIES REGULATORY COMMISSION
ON THE 2026-2030 MULTI-YEAR TARIFF ORDER (MYTO)

The Trades Union Congress (TUC) and the Public Utilities Regulatory Commission (PURC) convened meetings on 11th and 30th December 2025 to deliberate on the PURC's announcement of the 2026–2030 Multi-Year Tariff Order (MYTO), which takes effect on 1st January 2026. The discussions focused particularly on the implications of the tariff adjustments on the living conditions of workers, as well as on electricity stability and investments in the power and Water Sectors. The discussion also focused on avenues for collaboration between the two institutions.

Following the discussions, both parties reached the following understandings:

1. The PURC reaffirmed its position that any reversal of the tariff decision would have significant implications, not only for the Commission's independence but crucially for the stability of the energy and water sectors and the broader Ghanaian economy.
2. The Commission acknowledged the concerns raised by the TUC and committed to addressing them during the next tariff review window.
3. The TUC will continue to monitor the impact of the tariff adjustments on salaries and wages. The findings of this monitoring exercise will inform the Congress's subsequent course of action.
4. The TUC shall engage the government on the current wage levels and their impact on the cost-of-living circumstances of the Ghanaian worker.

The engagements between the TUC and PURC underscored the importance of continued dialogue and collaboration to ensure that tariff decisions are made in a manner that safeguards electricity stability, improves Water Access, economic stability, and affordability while addressing the concerns of the Ghanaian Worker.
